

Planning and Community Development Director

John Dugan

John Dugan is a professional city planner, community and economic developer, and planning educator. He holds a masters degree in city and regional planning from Harvard's Graduate School of Design and Kennedy School of Government. He has directed planning programs in a wide range of local government jurisdictions, including Norfolk, VA, Aurora, CO, Sonoma County, CA, Topeka, KS, Loudoun County, VA, and Oklahoma City, OK, Los Angeles, CA, Fresno, CA, and he is currently Director of Planning and Community Development for the City of San Antonio, TX.

He has also taught in several graduate city planning and public administration programs at Kansas State University, Old Dominion University, Memphis State University, and George Washington University. He was also formerly Professor of the Practice of Planning at the University of Oklahoma, and has served on the faculty of California State University, in both Los Angeles and Fresno. He is currently serving as an adjunct associate professor on the faculty of the University of Texas at San Antonio.

Mr. Dugan has also directed long range planning for Washington, DC's National Capital Planning Commission, and has served on several operational committees of the American Institute of Certified Planners, and was elected president of the Oklahoma Chapter of the American Planning Association.

He is married to Eileen Dugan an educator and journalist, and they have two children, John and Therese. He is also an active member the International Economic Development Council, Urban Land Institute, National Trust for Historic Preservation, and America/China City Alliance.

Education

- Master's Degree, Harvard University
- Bachelor's Degree, Tulane University